Urban Reef a traffic stopper

Viva Vancouver. Section of Robson Street closes to cars and welcomes pedestrian-friendly seating sculptures

A downtown block has officially said goodbye to cars for the summer to welcome a seating installation dubbed the Urban Reef.

The 800 block of Robson Street in front of the art gallery is officially closed until Labour Day to make way for the wooden seating sculptures of varying heights, which allow pedestrians to pause for lunch, enjoy a performance or lie back for a nap.

Created by a local team of architects and designers, the structures were so tempting to passersby in need of a seat that they jumped over caution tape to try it out before it officially opened on Thursday.

"It's really artsy, and it's actually really comfortable," said Vancouverite Sophie Chen, one of many who stopped to test the bench.

It's the fourth year the block has been shut for the season as part of Viva Vancouver, a project that encourages people to interact with fellow citizens in public spaces throughout the city.

To appease the drivers rankled by the annual closure, the city has extended the left-turn signal from Hornby to Robson to help keep traffic flowing, Coun. Kerry Jang said.

While a few people shouted negative comments about improper spending of tax dollars at the design team while it installed the seating, the response has been overwhelmingly positive, said Jeremiah Deutscher, one of the designers who beat 77 other entries in an international competition to program the space.

But like it or not, the team is pleased that it evokes an emotion, Deutscher said.

"You can hate it or you can love it, but it's better than just concrete."

The team designed the space with inspiration from a coral reef, as "life just happens around it," said designer Kaz Bremner.

They spent time hanging out on the downtown block to get a feel for local activity. They wanted to install something that facilitates action in the square, first turned into a pedestrian plaza for the 2010 Winter Olympics, whether the activity is people watching or eating a meal from a nearby food truck.

It took 20 days of late nights to build the structures, which cost the city $40,000.

Street closures will also take place on the weekends on Granville Street between Hastings and Smithe for live music and markets, on the 1100 block of Yaletown's Mainland Street for a farmers' market, and at smaller plazas throughout the city.

$15,000 in gear stolen from North Shore Rescue

The North Shore Rescue team is dismayed and disappointed after thieves broke into their rescue cache in the Hanes Valley and stole and vandalized about $15,000 worth of property.

The cache stores potentially lifesaving equipment needed for the team to conduct rescues in the remote area best reached by helicopter or a three-hour hike.

A hiker alerted the team to the theft on Monday, telling them the metal cache's padlock had been busted open and gear was strewn throughout the forest, the North Shore Rescue's Doug Pope said on Thursday.

The thieves stole a chainsaw, rope rescue equipment including static and dynamic ropes, a stretcher lift, survival gear, tents, a sleeping bag, a Therm-a-rest and an extensive medical kit. They used the chainsaw to destroy the helicopter landing pad built in conjunction with Metro Vancouver to make it easier to reach hikers in distress.

"It's a big setback," Pope said. "We rely on that cache and the other ones we have in the backcountry. Now we're going to have to scramble in one of our busiest times of year to try to scrape the funds together to get that kit operational."

To make matters worse, the cache was part of longtime North Shore Rescue leader Tim Jones legacy, Pope said. Jones died suddenly in January. His contributions are credited for making both citizens and rescue teams safer.

Chief Roger William, right, of the Xeni Gwet'in First Nation, is flanked by chiefs and other officials during a news conference in Vancouver after the Supreme Court of Canada ruled in favour of the Tsilhqot'in First Nation, granting it land title to 438,000-hectares on Thursday. Supreme Court grants land title to First Nation

Unprecedented. Ruling on B.C. land opens doors for resource rights cases

It has been 150 years since the Tsilhqot'in people of British Columbia declared war on the Crown and the descendants of descendants of warriors long dead declared victory Thursday, following a landmark ruling from the Supreme Court of Canada.

The ruling recognized, for the first time in Canada, aboriginal title to a specific tract of land. The unanimous decision ended a 25-year legal odyssey and set a historic precedent affecting resource rights.

At an emotional news conference, Percy Guichon, chief of the Tsi Del Del — one of the six nations within the Tsilhqot'in — spoke of their leaders being lured to peace talks and then hanged for the Chilcotin War of 1864.

"I'm so thankful and grateful to say that 150 years later we see the Supreme Court of Canada's decision today as the final justice for six chiefs who died for their land, way of life and the future of the Tsilhqot'in people," he said.

The high court overturned a B.C. Appeal Court ruling, essentially making it easier for First Nations to establish title over lands that were regularly used for hunting, fishing and other activities prior to contact with Europeans.

Union of B.C. Indian Chiefs

"We have an opportunity to participate in the economic future of this province as equal partners." Stewart Phillip

Unlike other provinces, the Crown did not sign treaties with most B.C. First Nations and the landmark ruling — the court's first on aboriginal title — will weigh heavily in unresolved land claims.

"British Columbia is comprised of unceded, unextinguished aboriginal-title territory from one end to the other," said Stewart Phillip, grand chief of the Union of B.C. Indian Chiefs.

Phillip admitted he was not expecting the decision but he called it a win for all Canadians.

"Now we have the opportunity, we have the platform to build a genuine dialogue of reconciliation that has eluded us for so long," he said.

The Tsilhqot'in nation is located west of Williams Lake, in the B.C. Interior, with a population of about 3,000.

Surrey. Police arrest man in lethal hit-and-run

Police have arrested a man in relation to a hit-and-run that killed a 16-year-boy in Surrey on Tuesday night.

The teen was rushed to hospital, where he later died, after a car turned left into his motorcycle at the intersection of 96th Avenue and 123A Street just before 11 p.m., according to police. The driver fled on foot.

A 62-year-old Surrey man was arrested at his home Wednesday afternoon on charges of criminal negligence causing death and failing to remain at the scene of the accident. He is co-operating with police and has been released from custody pending charges.

"Although we are still in the early stages of what will be a lengthy criminal investigation, the arrest of the driver is obviously crucial to its success," said Surrey RCMP spokesman Cpl. Bert Paquet in a statement.

Financial mess?

Métis group blasts ministry response

Aboriginal Affairs Minister Bernard Valcourt is being accused of dragging his feet over allegations of poor financial management at the Métis National Council.

In a letter to Valcourt released Thursday, the head of the B.C. Métis Federation says it appears no one at Aboriginal Affairs seems concerned.

Ministry officials say the matter has already been dealt with through the signing last year of a renewed Métis protocol and a new governance and financial accountability accord.

The Lions Gate Bridge is getting a makeover to get rid of the slapping sound on the north side.

The joints and bearings on the north viaduct that connects Marine Drive to the bridge will be replaced or removed in a $4.2-million repair job set to begin next week, the province announced Thursday.

The government says most of the work will be done at night to minimize the impact on traffic. Under-deck work will take place during the day, which may be noisy.

Cop dogs need to be controlled: Report

Pivot Legal Society. Report says dogs are No. 1 source of injury caused by police in B.C.

MATT KIELTYKA
matt.kieltyka@metronews.ca

The use of police dogs in B.C. needs more regulation, according to a new report.

Pivot Legal Society released a study Thursday entitled Moving to Minimum Force: Police Dogs + Public Safety in British Columbia, which looks at two years of police records and interviews with people who have been bitten by service dogs.

"More than empty-handed, more than bean-bag guns or batons or pepper spray, police dogs injure the most amount of people in our province," said Pivot's Douglas King.

The 490 people bitten and injured by police dogs in the province — a number Pivot feels is under-reported — amounts to one person being bitten every other day.

The circumstances of when and where dogs can be deployed are largely unregulated, the report states.

Andrew Rowe, represented by Pivot in his ongoing lawsuit against the RCMP, says he's the victim of reckless police dog handling.

Allegation

"The dog was used as a weapon."

Andrew Rowe, who is suing the RCMP over his injury

In 2007, Rowe was arrested by police in Langley for shoplifting a DVD. He claims a dog was used to take him into custody.

"The dog bit through my arm," he said. "It was the most excruciating pain I've ever felt in my life."

Once he was in custody and laying face down on the pavement, Rowe alleges police set the dog on him again.

"He latched onto my head and punctured the back of my skull, removing my ear and tearing my face apart," said Rowe, pointing at the scarred right side of his head.

"Now I walk around half-deaf and scarred for life answering questions about what happened."

The Ministry of Justice released a statement saying it has formed a Police Dog Working Group, which is in the process of finalizing provincial standards on appropriate deployment.

Alleged brothel near schools irks police

A residence within a one-block radius of an Abbotsford high school and elementary school is under investigation after people believed to be johns interacted with students.

The Abbotsford police department is recommending charges of keeping a common bawdy house against a 54-year-old woman from Vancouver, said Const. Ian MacDonald on Thursday.

The investigation started in December due to complaints from the public that apparent customers were visiting the house in the 2800 block of Townline Road at the same time students were going to and from school.

"In a couple instances, there were uncomfortable conversations between customers and kids going to high school," MacDonald said. "We absolutely did feel compelled to recommend charges."

There was, however, no evidence to support human trafficking or involvement of youth at the residence, MacDonald said.

While there is much uncertainty surrounding Canada's prostitution laws — the law banning brothels was struck down last year, but a bill introduced this spring could change that — police felt they couldn't turn a blind eye to this particular residence.

It will be up to the Crown to decide whether to pursue charges.

‘Strong suspects’ but no charges in Highway of Tears case: RCMP

Women targeted.
Roughly 60 officers were assigned to the case at the height of the investigation

The Mountie overseeing the investigation into the murders and disappearances of women and girls along British Columbia’s so-called Highway of Tears says his officers have a number of “strong suspects,” but they have yet to uncover enough evidence to lay charges, nearly two years after the last major break in the case.

Staff Sgt. Wayne Clary leads project E-PANA, which has spent years investigating the deaths and disappearances of 18 women and girls along three highways in the province’s north.

Roughly 60 officers were assigned to the case at the height of the investigation, though Clary said that number has dropped to between 12 and 15, who spend most of their time on the project. Still, he said E-PANA is very much an active investigation.

“It has scaled down, because we’ve pounded through a lot of work, but there’s still enough work in front of us to keep going,” Clary told The Canadian Press.

“There’s more than one investigation where we have strong suspects or persons of interest, and we’re clearly focusing on those ... I’d like nothing more than to sit down with the families and say, ‘We’ve got the guy.”’

Clary declined to offer details about how many suspects the RCMP have identified or in which specific cases, though he said the suspects they have in mind are located in Canada.

The last significant development came in September 2012, when investigators said they believed a dead American convict named Bobby Jack Fowler was responsible for killing as many as three of the women.

The RCMP said investigators had uncovered DNA evidence linking Fowler, who died in an Oregon prison in 2006, to Colleen MacMillen, who was murdered in 1974. They also said they believed Fowler may have been involved in the deaths of Gale Weys and Pamela Darlington, both 19, who were killed in the mid-1970s.

Clary said the force doesn’t have the same kind of direct evidence tying Fowler to Weys and Darlington, but he added: “Personally, I think it’s him in the other two.”

Clary said E-PANA hasn’t come up with evidence to suggest any of the other women and girls were linked together, meaning there could be 15 different suspects for the 15 remaining cases.

“If we have a strong suspect, absolutely we’re looking for crossed lines, but right now we’re not seeing that,” he said.

B.C. lawyers plan ‘blackout’ protest of legal aid funding

Vancouver criminal defence lawyer Justin Myers is taking part in a one-month legal-aid services blackout in a bid to pressure the B.C. government to increase funding. CONTRIBUTED

Lawyers across B.C. are being urged to stop taking on new legal aid cases next month in a bid to pressure the provincial government to boost funding for the system.

“We’re doing this blackout of services because we need equal access to justice for everyone,” said Vancouver criminal defence lawyer Justin Myers, a member of the legal aid action committee within B.C.’s Trial Lawyers Association.

Myers said many lawyers in Vancouver, Victoria, Kamloops and Penticton are participating in the job action that will see them refuse to take on new legal aid referrals next month.

The goal is to push the province to pour more funding into the legal aid system, said Myers, which he described as chronically underfunded in B.C.

Forty per cent of people facing criminal charges represent themselves because they don’t meet the necessary criteria for legal aid approval, Myers said.

Despite this, Myers said the absolute dollar value dedicated to legal aid in B.C. has stayed the same since 1991 despite inflation increasing.

The province would need to invest an extra $50 million a year for the legal aid budget to be restored to 1991 levels, when “everyone who wanted a lawyer got a lawyer,” he said.

On Thursday, Justice Minister Suzanne Anton said in a statement that the B.C. government recognizes the important role legal aid plays in providing services to B.C., which is why the province increased the Legal Services Society budget this year by $2 million, bringing the 2014-15 budget to $74.5 million.

“If the Trial Lawyers Association goes ahead with the withdrawal of legal aid representation, the Legal Services Society has a plan in place to ensure essential duty counsel services will be available,” she said.

The legal aid blackout of services begins July 5 and runs until Aug. 8.

Recommendation

Coroner urges municipalities to enact pool fencing bylaws

Municipalities should draft bylaws requiring residential pools to be fenced on all sides, according to a B.C. Coroners Service report.

The key recommendation comes from the service’s Child Death Review Panel’s investigation into the drowning deaths of 35 children between 2007 to 2013.

While the majority of child drowning deaths in the province involve teenagers in natural bodies of water (such as lakes, rivers and the ocean), the panel reported that four deaths of children under the age of four occurred in a residential pool.

There were also five cases — all involving the death of children seven years old or younger — where an inadequate level of supervision was a factor.

“Research suggests that in cases where a young child drowns, it is often due to a momentary lapse in supervision, where the parent or caregiver is distracted” the report says.

One of the case studies highlighted in the report involved a three-year-old that was left in the playroom of a home but managed to open a sliding glass door into the backyard while unsupervised.

The pool was fenced around three sides (the back of the house was the fourth perimeter) but the child still managed to access the pool area.

The report calls on the Union of B.C. Municipalities to establish a four-sided pool fencing bylaw to prevent young children from gaining access to pools on their own.

“Young children under the age of four years are at highest risk for drowning in a backyard pool,” the report says. “Currently, there are 61 local governments in B.C. with bylaws specific to pool safety barriers. None of these bylaws require four-sided fencing that would completely isolate a backyard pool.”

The report also recommends stakeholders develop more effective water safety and prevention messaging for male teens (who are most at-risk), as well as parents.

Overall, the report found the rate of drowning deaths among children in B.C. has been steadily dropping.

B.C. recorded 0.5 deaths per 100,000 people between 2007 and 2012, down from 1.2 between 2003 and 2006.

Busker festival hits the streets

Street Circus. A husband-and-wife acrobatic duo turned down the prospect of auditioning for Cirque du soleil to keep busking

THANDI FLETCHER
thandi.fletcher@metronews.ca

It's fair to say street acrobats Dan and Kim Craig live to busk.

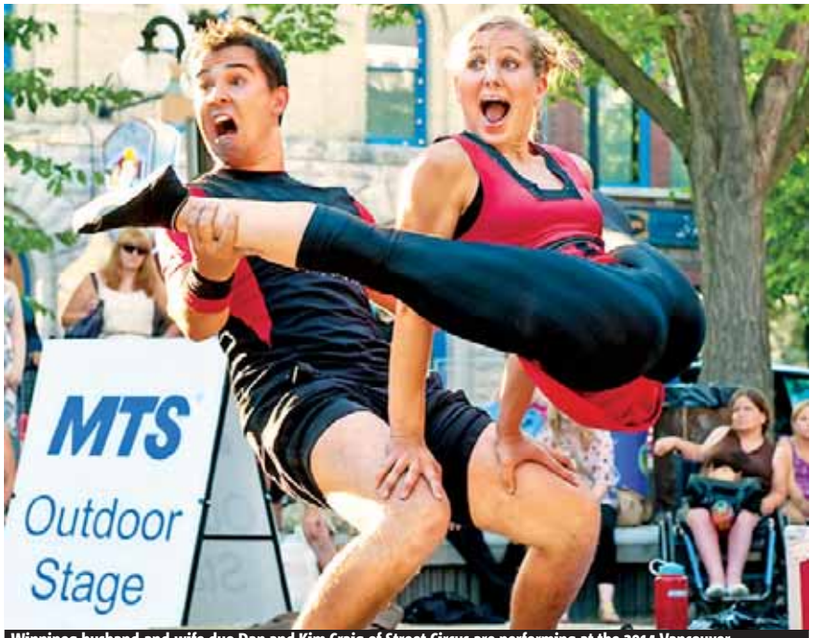
Their love of busking is so strong, in fact, that even the prospect of an audition for Cirque du Soleil — along with the regular paycheque that comes with the prestigious gig — couldn't lure the husband-and-wife duo away from pavement performance.

"There have been multiple offers for both of us to go (audition)," Dan Craig told Metro. "But I don't know, I just think we have a lot more fun doing our own thing."

The Winnipeg-based performers are just one of dozens of acrobats, comedians and musicians bringing their unique skills to the third annual Vancouver International Busker Festival, taking place between noon and 10 p.m. Saturday and Sunday on Granville Street between Smithe and Dunsmuir.

While they may not have a big circus tent as their backdrop, the Craigs aspire to perform at the same level as Cirque acrobats in their act.

Called Street Circus, the shows feature the couple performing more than 100 mind-bending tricks and stunts from handstands to hula-hoops, fire juggling and seemingly impossible contortion moves.



Winnipeg husband-and-wife duo Dan and Kim Craig of Street Circus are performing at the 2014 Vancouver International Busker Festival. CONTRIBUTED

"We tout it as sort of a Cirque du Soleil but with a much lower budget and much more in your face," Dan said with a laugh.

It's that up-close contact with their audience that pushes Dan, a 20-year busking veteran, and Kim, who started performing a decade ago, to keep performing as long as they have, despite some of the challenges that come with the job.

"You are never more than a couple dozen feet from your audience," said Dan. "Despite being exceptionally challenging … it's by far one of the most rewarding things in the world."

While audience rejection is a constant threat, the couple said being professional buskers also means long hours as they work to hone their craft.

"It's something that you can't do unless you love it," he said.

For Kim, a major challenge in becoming a performer was overcoming stage fright. She credited busking with helping her tackle the phobia.

"You're so close to the audience (that) I had to get over being scared," she said. "It made me a much better performer."

The opening ceremony for the Vancouver Buskers Festival starts 6 p.m. at the North Pavilion of the Vancouver Art Gallery.

Trudeau calls Tories' foreign worker program 'anti-Alberta'

'Getting whiplash.' Jason Kenney takes to Twitter to join other Conservatives in mocking Liberal leader's comments

Liberal leader Justin Trudeau speaks with the media in the foyer of the House of Commons following caucus on Parliament Hill Wednesday in Ottawa. ADRIAN WYLD/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Justin Trudeau is describing the Conservative government's embattled temporary foreign worker program as "one of the most anti-Alberta federal policies we've seen in decades."

The Liberal leader made the remarks this week in Fort McMurray, Alta., while campaigning in advance of Monday's byelection in the heart of oilsands country with candidate Kyle Harrietha.

The comment invites comparisons to Pierre Trudeau's national energy program, a policy still reviled by Albertans 34 years after it sought to distribute the province's oil wealth to poorer parts of the country. In the past, Trudeau has taken pains to distance himself from his father's energy policies.

In Fort McMurray on Wednesday, he accused the Tories of mishandling the temporary foreign workers file for so long that "they're now putting in caps that are going to hurt people in Fort McMurray," a community with low unemployment and a booming economy.

"Bringing in blanket changes the way they have has even got some of the local Conservatives very, very uncomfortable with the way the government has mishandled this file," he added.

The Conservatives mocked Trudeau's comments, saying he advocated a moratorium on the entire low-skilled temporary foreign worker stream earlier this year in the House of Commons.

"I'm getting whiplash trying to follow the shambolic Liberal policy on the Temporary Foreign Worker Program," Employment Minister Jason Kenney tweeted.

StatsCan. Hate crimes that target sexual orientation more likely to be violent

Most racial or religious hate crimes in Canada involve only mischief, but violence occurs in two-thirds of the incidents in which sexual orientation is the key factor, new data released Thursday suggests.

Police reported 1,414 hate-motivated criminal incidents in 2012, up 82 from the previous year, Statistics Canada said in its latest report on hate crimes.

The agency defines hate crimes as those that are found by police investigations to be motivated by hatred against an identifiable group.

Overall, almost 70 per cent of hate crimes reported by police were non-violent, with mischief — incidents such as vandalism, graffiti and other destruction of property — as the most common offence.

However, two-thirds of hate crimes involving sexual orientation involved violence, as did a third of those involving racial or ethnic hatred, Statistics Canada reported.

Violence occurred in only 13 per cent of religiously motivated hate incidents.

Tories change tune on charging fee to foreign musicians

Ottawa has effectively eliminated a fee charged to international musicians that critics complained was deterring acts from abroad from playing in Canadian bars, pubs and restaurants.

The removal of a work permit requirement for foreign musical acts, part of the government's overhaul of the controversial temporary foreign worker program, went largely unnoticed amid a spate of other measures announced last week.

Medical marijuana growers put illegal grow-ops to shame

First Harvest. Metro reporter gets a peek at modern Ontario facility

JESSICA SMITH CROSS
Metro in Toronto

The 55,000-square-foot MedReleaf warehouse in Markham, Ont., is unassuming from the outside with the exception of a faint but recognizable smell.

Metro agreed to keep the exact location of the medical marijuana production facility a secret to protect the people who work there and the thousands of plants inside.

The company is one of 20 marijuana producers licensed by Health Canada so far.

The Tour

Inside MedReleaf's pot plant, workers and guests are constantly monitored on video surveillance, mandated by Health Canada.

Before seeing any marijuana, our small group enters a decontamination room, puts on white clean-room suits, hair nets, gloves and booties, and passes through an airlock.

Everything is engineered to keep things hygienic, and the plant meets the ISO class 8 standard, like an operating room.

Medical pot hangs in the drying room of the MedReleaf plant in Markham.
COURTESY ALEXANDER E. REPETSKI/MEDRELEAF

The 'mother room'

After the airlock, we enter the "mother room," where there are rows of pot plants under 1,000-watt bluish lights. Here are the 23 strains of pot the company is currently producing.

Clippings from the mother plants, called clones, are kept in a high-humidity "clone room" where they grow roots over seven to 14 days.

Next they're transferred to one of the "flower rooms," where 2,000 to 6,000 plants grow under red spectrum light, are fed a nutrient solution.

The Markham pot plant says it will soon have 10 flower rooms and grow about 150,000 pot plants without pesticide.

When ready for harvest, the plants go to the trimming room.

The air quality in the trimming room is tested by an air particle counter and employees' gloved hands are tested for contaminants.

Employees pick off the leaves and trim the buds before they're hung across metal wire to dry in the drying room.

When the buds are dry, they'll be either quarantined or released by Health Canada.

All the pot that's good to go will be vacuum-sealed and mailed in unmarked packages.

Any pot that's stored is kept in a vault with two complex locks behind a giant blue cage, which is also locked and secured with an alarm.

Cashing in

A growing industry?

Even though it has yet to ship any pot, executives at MedReleaf see a big future for medical cannabis.

"We can service well over 10,000 patients from this building and we're already looking at expanding to other facilities," said CEO Neil Closner. "We believe it could be quite a big market for those producers who can produce at a level that not only patients want, but physicians feel comfortable prescribing."

According to the government, 920 companies have applied to become producers so far. Of those, 20 have been approved, 407 were returned as incomplete, 163 were refused, 34 were withdrawn by the applicant and 296 are currently being reviewed.

Some companies have elected to raise funds from the market. Several stocks posted big gains just by announcing plans to get in on the medical marijuana market.

British taxpayers feel the pinch of palace repairs and renovations

$65-million monarchy. More than a third spent on maintenance of aging palaces

Buckingham Palace accounts released Thursday show the monarchy cost British taxpayers 35.7 million pounds (about $65 million) last year — 56 pence (about $1) for everyone in the country.

That is 7.2 per cent, or 2.4 million pounds, more than the year before and the increase is mainly explained by the British royal family's repair bills.

Their properties are hardly typical. Buckingham Palace, for example, has 240 bedrooms and 78 bathrooms. That's a lot of plumbing to fix when things go wrong.

So it's no surprise that more than a third of the money British taxpayers paid for the monarchy, led by Queen Elizabeth II, was spent on repairs, improvements and maintenance of aging but still opulent palaces.

"We continue to focus on value for money," said Keeper of the Privy Purse Alan Reid, asserting that careful spending habits had allowed for more money to be used for important maintenance work.

A big part of the fixer-upper budget in the 12 months that ended on March 31 went to creating a suitable home for the young family of Prince William, his wife Kate and their toddler Prince George.

Some 3.4 million pounds of taxpayer funds were used to refurbish part of London's Kensington Palace for the couple. The extensive work included removing asbestos, installing new heating and redecorating.

The couple, who have considerable personal financial resources in part because of the estate left by Princess Diana, paid for the carpets, curtains and furniture out of personal funds, the palace said.

In addition, Prince Charles' private secretary, William Nye, suggested that Charles and his wife Camilla — who are supported by profits from the extensive Duchy of Cornwall estate — may have helped William and Kate set up their new home.

The palace accounts also showed the high cost of entertaining on a royal scale: 2 million pounds were spent on "housekeeping and hospitality" in the 12 months that ended on March 31.

A message of 'love and hope and equality'

Grand Pride Wedding. The event for lesbian, gay, bisexual, queer, transgender and two-spirited couples may have been first in Canada

Jane Cullingworth and Bonnie Slade could have waited to have their wedding at home in Scotland, where legislation on same-sex marriages will soon be enacted, but that wasn't the way they wanted it.

Instead, the couple flew across the Atlantic to Toronto where they stood alongside 108 others on Thursday as officiants from 12 denominations gave their blessing to the crowd.

The Grand Pride Wedding for lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, queer and two-spirited couples was thought to be the first of its kind in Canada and involved individuals from around the world.

"It feels celebratory but also quite political. It's a very strong statement across the world about lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgendered rights," said Cullingworth, 50.

"I think it's a message of love and hope and equality really in it's most simplest form — that everyone should have the right to marry a person that they love."

For Slade, opting to wed her partner of 16 years in Toronto instead of Scotland was an easy decision to make.

"The progressive human rights in Toronto and in Canada, it's incredible really," she said, noting the open celebration of the World Pride festival throughout the city. "It's a real sign of progress."

Richard Laslett and Colin Gunther, a couple who had travelled to the wedding from Australia, also noted Canada's lead on same-sex issues while acknowledging that their union wouldn't be recognized when they got home.

"It's sad, it's embarrassing," Gunther said of Australia's stance on same-sex unions. "But we'll know we're married."

"We're husband and husband now," Laslett added. "That's what really matters to us."

Cindy Su and Lana Yu will face a similar situation when they return to Taiwan, but the couple said they were thrilled to make things official.

"We figured we didn't really want any objection to stop us from doing what we want in life," said Su.

"I'm actually looking forward to what happens when we go back. Maybe in the future there will be some problems with the legality but now that we want to start a family, we have to be really brave."

Over 100 gay couples participate in a mass wedding during World Pride 2014 at Casa Loma in Toronto on Thursday.
DARREN CALABRESE/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Kisses, hugs and tears abounded after the couples at Thursday's wedding said "I do" in unison.

For Inae Lee, being surrounded by such a large group provided a form of support she wasn't able to get from her own family.

"In my parents' mind they don't believe that this can be celebrated. In their mind it's something that's illegal, it's something that's not allowed, it's very sinful," said the 28-year-old who is originally from South Korea.

"I really want to let them know that we are celebrated, and it's OK for us to get married." THE CANADIAN PRESS

Sobeys axes 50 stores

Underperforming locations. Most of the closures will be in Western Canada

Sobeys is closing about 50 underperforming grocery stores across the country as it deals with intense competition and tries to squeeze savings from its operations after the acquisition of Safeway in Canada.

About 60 per cent of the affected Sobeys locations will be in Western Canada, while the rest will be spread out across the country, said Marc Poulin, president and CEO of both Sobeys and its parent company Empire Co.

Other facilities and plants could also be closed once further reviews are completed.

"Clearly, we have learned a lot from this process and will assess our options with a view to do what is right for the business," he said in a conference call, after the Nova Scotia-based company released sharply lower quarterly results on Thursday.

"After all, it's all about maximizing the value to the shareholders."

Sobeys did not say how many employees would be laid off and did not respond to requests for a list of locations to be closed. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Background

Earlier this year, Sobeys announced deals to sell some 30 stores in Western Canada including 23 that were part of an agreement with the Competition Bureau in connection with its purchase of Canada Safeway last year.

A taste for adventure

GoPro's CEO Nick Woodman holds a GoPro camera in his mouth as he celebrates his company's IPO at the Nasdaq MarketSite in New York on Thursday. GoPro, the maker of wearable sports cameras, loved by mountain climbers, divers, surfers and other extreme sports fans, said late Wednesday it sold 17.8 million shares at $24 US each in its initial public offering of stock, valuing the company at about $3 billion. Indigo 'huge believers in books': CEO

The head of Indigo Books and Music Inc., and its self-proclaimed chief book lover, believes there will always be a market for the written word — on paper and bound between two covers.

"We believe books are here for the long term," chief executive Heather Reisman said following Indigo's annual general meeting Thursday. "Yes, people will read digitally but a lot of people are reading both. We are huge believers in books.... That is at the core, at the very essence of our business."

Reisman said Indigo may be the "only people on the planet" who are still investing in bookshelves at their stores, with no plans to cut back on titles. In fact, it is aiming to increase the number of books it carries.

Meanwhile, Indigo, Canada's largest book, gift and specialty toy retail chain, expects the surge in popularity of digital books to wane.

"For the moment, books seem to be behaving in a contrarian way to other digital media," said Reisman.

But even though Indigo is continuing to bet heavily on books, the company is still readying itself to grow into more than just a bookseller. It hopes to complete its five-year transformation to become the "world's first cultural department store" by 2015. THE CANADIAN PRESS

HOT THUGS & THE MJ AFTERLIFE

It's time for another dose of The List, Metro's guide to what's hot this week:

THE METRO LIST

Paul Sullivan
metronews.ca

1 Speaking of Hot. There's hot ... and there's hot. Jeremy Meeks, a 30-year-old gangster from Stockton, Calif. was arrested on weapons charges recently, but his mug shot looks so hot, there's an Internet-spawned movement to set him free, so he can continue to look studly while (allegedly) stealing cars. Be careful what you wish for, America.

2 He's Baaaaack! Like those plastic clowns you punch and they pop back up, Rob Ford just keeps popping up. Unfortunately, he keeps popping up at Toronto City Hall. Fresh out of rehab for various alcohol and drug problems, he's scheduled to return to his civic three-ring circus on June 30. While he was away, city council changed the locks and got a lot done. I can't believe I'm writing this, but he's second in the polls for the next election. Never mind me. Imagine how John Tory feels. He's trailing Rob Ford.

3 He's Not Coming Back. He Doesn't Need To. At least I don't think so. Although you never know with Michael Jackson. It's been five years (five years?!) since the Moonwalker died — June 25, 2014 — to be precise, but the music, oh the music, lives on. And you want hot? The King of Pop has made $700 million since he died. That's more than Jay-Z, Taylor Swift and Kanye West combined. He's just not like other boys.

4 Overbite Sensation. It's been quite the week for Bad Boys, but No. 1 with a bite has to be Luis Suarez, the Uruguayan soccer star who has bitten not one, but two World Cup opponents. No doubt worried that other squads won't play unless Suarez is fitted with a muzzle, FIFA has banned him for the next four months and that includes the rest of the World Cup. That's going to take a bite of out Uruguay's hopes, as Suarez is definitely their sharpest player.

5 Reality TV Sucks. News flash: TV is bad for your health. Apparently, watching Howie Mandel match wits with Howard Stern on America's Got Talent is a quick ticket to a fast exit. A Spanish study of more than 13,000 healthy adults found that spending more than three hours a day watching TV doubles your chances of an early death. As usual, Mom was right all along. Too bad she's no longer with us ... Grey's Anatomy, you know.

6 Neanderthal Time Capsule The week's most significant scientific discovery: the world's oldest poop. The Spanish again. This time, they discovered a 50,000-year-old pile of Neanderthal coprolites, or fossilized feces, and it seems there may be more to the Paleo diet than we thought. Along with the mammoth steaks and reindeer burgers, they found clear evidence of veggies: Berries, nuts and tubers. Nouveau cavemen. Who knew?

Iran looks to save last of the Asiatic cheetahs

Iran is rushing to try to save one of the world's critically endangered species, the Asiatic cheetah, and bring it back from the verge of extinction in its last refuge.

By the numbers

Estimated number of Asiatic cheetahs that remain in Iran, mostly in the east of the country.

The Asiatic cheetah, an equally fast cousin of the African cat, once ranged from the Red Sea to India, but its numbers have shrunkin the past century to the point that the species is now hanging on by a thin thread.

Once known as "hunting leopards," Asiatic cheetahs were traditionally trained for emperors and kings in Iran and India to hunt gazelles. They disappeared across the Middle East about 100 years ago, although there were sightings in Saudi Arabia until the 1950s.

Iran's efforts have been given a symbolic boost at the World Cup in Brazil, where Iran's team wore images of the cheetah on their uniforms.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The conservation work

With help from the UN, the Iranian government has stepped up efforts to rescue the species.

- Cameras have been set up around cheetah habitats to watch for threats.
- Authorities built shelters in arid areas so cats can have access to water.
- They've reached out to nearby communities, training them how to deal with cheetahs and promising compensation for killed livestock.

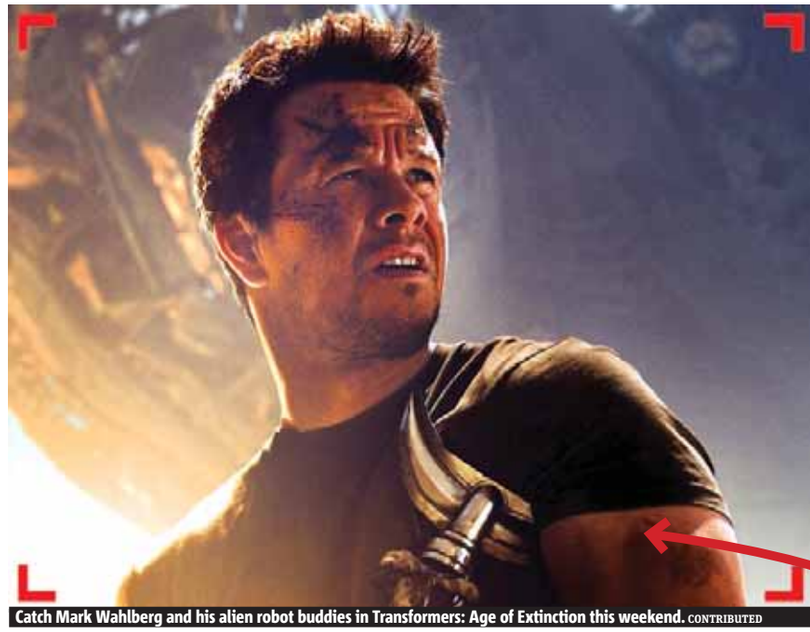
A wide-ranging action orgy

Reel Guys

RICHARD CROUSE AND MARK BRESLIN



Catch Mark Wahlberg and his alien robot buddies in Transformers: Age of Extinction this weekend. CONTRIBUTED

Synopsis

The action begins when unemployed robotic engineer Cade Yeager (Mark Wahlberg) and daughter Tessa (Nicola Peltz) uncover deactivated Autobot Optimus Prime (Peter Cullen) hidden under a pile of junk. Their discovery puts them under the microscope of CIA agent Harold Attinger (Kelsey Grammer) and tech tycoon Joshua Joyce (Stanley Tucci). The two are hatching a plan, fuelled by equal parts paranoia and genius, to build man-made second generation Transformers to seek out and destroy the Autobots.

Transformers: Age of Extinction. This flick may be excessive on just about every level, but you'll definitely love it — if you're a 12-year-old boy

Richard: Mark, everybody loves spectacle. The Romans had the Coliseum and we have the Transformers movies. Like the gladiatorial shows of yore, in Michael Bay's movies it doesn't matter who lives or dies — the films don't care about their human characters and neither do we — all that matters is the spectacle of the whole thing, and at an almost frenetic three hours, Age of Extinction certainly delivers on that score.

For many, getting value per minute for their movie dollar will be enough, but do you, like the old Roman emperors, give this a thumbs up or down?

Mark: Richard, I was glued to my seat throughout! You see, some idiot had spilled epoxy on the seat before I sat down and it took the full two-and-three-quarter hours to wriggle out of my jeans.

I have never been able to sit through a Transformers movie, but epoxy aside, at least this one had a coherent story, some decent acting thanks to Wahlberg, Stanley Tucci and Kelsey Grammer, and some exciting chase sequences.

I just can't wrap my head around watching a bunch of Swiss Army knives on steroids bashing each other. But then again, I'm not a 12-year-old boy.

RC: No one can accuse Bay of skimping on ... well, anything. Age of Extinction is a wide-ranging action orgy that plays off of Bush-era Homeland Security paranoia and also explains why dinosaurs became extinct. It comments on the ethics of unarmed warfare and blows up most of Hong Kong. Bay doesn't do anything by half measures but I found myself wishing the movie was about half as long as it is with half the bombast.

It's stylish: "Why run when you can run in slow motion?" Bay seems to be asking, not unlike a car commercial. But it's excessive on almost every level. I don't expect or want My Dinner with Optimus Prime, but in this case I think less would have been more.

MB: My feelings here are complicated. I used to take it for granted that this kind of direction was evidence of a hack sensibility, which assumes that quantity makes viewers forget quality — a real cynic's position. But watching this instalment, I'm no longer so sure.

I think Bay really believes that these grand excesses are heroic, even Shakespearean. Its running time is equal to Hamlet. The movie is cheesy and schlocky, for sure, but the one possible grace note is Bay's commitment to the drive of the film. Too long, for sure, but at least this movie moves.

RC: Shakespeare never wrote a play about a giant alien robot playing bucking bronco with a humungous dinobot. That's all Bay.

MB: Or had a billion-dollar grossing movie. That's all Bay St.

Stars. Jenny Slate, Gaby Hoffman

For aspiring comedian Donna Stern, everyday life as a female twenty-something provides ample material for her incredibly relatable brand of humour. On stage, Donna is unapologetically herself. But when Donna gets dumped, loses her job, and finds herself pregnant just in time for Valentine's Day, she has to navigate the murky waters of independent adulthood for the first time.

Evil, decades in the making

Sowing sinister seeds. Director Scott Derrickson blends police procedural and possession drama in his latest offering

CHRIS ALEXANDER

Deliver Us From Evil opens next Wednesday. CONTRIBUTED

If the trailers and advance word of mouth are any reliable barometer, the upcoming shocker Deliver Us From Evil (based on the fact-based book by Ralph Sarchie) just might be the American horror movie of the year. It certainly boasts high pedigree in its director.

Scott Derrickson has been a top draw in Hollywood for almost 20 years, penning and directing such hits as The Exorcism of Emily Rose, the remake of The Day the Earth Stood Still and 2012's blockbuster horror film, Sinister. The success of that latter chiller influenced the production of Deliver Us From Evil but Derrickson has had a hand in the long-gestating project for decades.

"(Producer) Jerry Bruckheimer brought the book to me in 1994," notes the director.

"His take was basically, 'Let's make Serpico meets The Exorcist', which I thought was the coolest thing I've ever heard. So I got the job, wrote the first couple of drafts of the script, and then he decided to have another writer on board. But while I was in N.Y.C. I got to spend a week with Ralph, got to know him very well and Ralph was the guy who gave me an out-of-print copy of the book The Exorcism of Annaleise Michel, which I optioned for 100 bucks and turned into The Exorcism of Emily Rose. True Story!"

The Sarchie script — then called Beware the Night — saw three other writers tinker with it in an attempt to 'improve' it, before Bruckheimer put it on the shelf. Then, after the runaway success of Sinister, things changed.

"When Sinister came out," explains Derrickson, "Screen Gems asked me what I wanted to do next and I told them about Beware the Night. They read my first draft and said, 'We want to make this movie with you.' So here we are."

Retitled Deliver Us From Evil, Derrickson's thriller is indeed a blend of police procedural and possession drama. It chronicles the on-screen version of Sarchie (played by Eric Bana), an New York City cop who teams up with a priest to examine the possibility of a spate of urban violence being linked to the supernatural. Filled with explicit violence but tempered by deeply etched character arcs, it's a film that defies easy categorization. Derrickson claims this was by design.

"It's one of the highest testing movies ever and it's scary. Audiences loved it. But when they were asked if it was a horror film or a supernatural thriller, they didn't know how to answer. I do think it is as much a horror film as it is a cop film and that was the goal, no half and half, rather 100 per cent both genres sharing space."

We're committed to getting better support for students and a fair deal for teachers. We've been at the bargaining table for 16 months without much progress. Both parties clearly need the services of a mediator to resolve this dispute. We're asking for your help too. Please contact Premier Christy Clark, Education Minister Peter Fassbender, your MLA, and your local school trustees. Tell them parents, students and teachers want a successful mediation process and a fairly negotiated settlement. Tell them the time to act is now. It's time for government to reinvest in education.

What's at the heart of our dispute?

It's simple: a strong public education system. Since 2002, when class-size limits, support for students with special needs, and specialist teacher staffing levels were stripped, $275 million has been cut from the system each year. That's a whopping $3 billion over the last 12 years.

- All kids deserve smaller classes and better one-on-one support. Staffing levels for counsellors, teacher-librarians, English language learning teachers, learning resource/support teachers, and other specialist teachers must be improved.
- BC's per-student funding is the second worst in the country, $1,000 below the national average. Kids can't wait any longer.
- Teachers are asking for a fair and reasonable salary increase. We haven't had a raise since 2010.

They Came Together. Wet Hot American Summer director takes aim at the formulaic nature of rom-coms in his latest flick

scene@metronews.ca

They Came Together opens in select theatres and on VOD this weekend. CONTRIBUTED

When comedian and filmmaker David Wain made the movie Wet Hot American Summer 13 years ago, he never dreamed the summer camp satire would become a huge cult hit.

"I was surprised when I started to see that happening," said the director, who's gone on to make such comic hits as Role Models.

"When we did the film, we didn't have many expectations, but we hoped people would like it."

The demand has grown so much, in fact, that a sequel is in the early stages — an idea that originated after Wain reunited many of the 2001 film's original cast — including Amy Poehler and Paul Rudd for They Came Together (in theatres and on-demand this Friday). A parody of romantic comedies, the silly satire follows the aforementioned pair playing two perfectly suited lovers in what is being described as every bit as brilliant as The Naked Gun.

"That's a great compliment," exclaimed Wain, who credits his two stars as delivering the most dry on-camera performances since Gun's legendary lead, Leslie Nielsen.

"You need actors who can perform at a range where they can convey many emotions and deliver the script with such conviction no matter how silly it reads on paper."

Also known as one-third of the comedy troupe Stella (which includes actors Michael Ian Black and Michael Showalter), Wain insists They Came Together is both an homage to the formulaic nature of most rom-coms and a lampooning of the ludicrous character developments and clichéd twists of just about every Hollywood heart-tugger produced since (and including) You've Got Mail.

"I think we poked fun at all of them," said Wain.

"We took care to make sure that all of the aspects of romantic comedies were spoofed, from the perfect couple and their best friends to hitting the required story points to using New York not just as a setting but a character as well, we wanted all the tropes of romantic comedies to be in there."

Leto named Sexiest Vegetarian Celebrity

As if the Oscar wasn't enough, Jared Leto now has the title of Sexiest Vegetarian Celebrity to be proud of, thanks to PETA. Of course, he has to share the honour with X-Men: Days of Future Past star Ellen Page, who was named as his female counterpart in the realm of sexy vegetarianism, according to E! News. Leto beat out Joaquin Phoenix, Samuel L. Jackson, Peter Dinklage and Woody Harrelson for the honour, while Page smoked Ariana Grande, Mad Men star Jessica Paré, Laura Prepon and Sarah Silverman.

Will Ferrell threatened to bite German soccer players

MELINDA TAUB
Metro World News

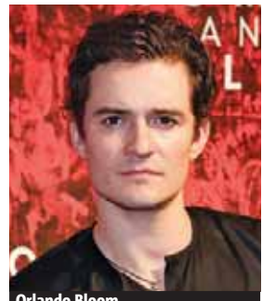
If you were watching Thursday's World Cup game between the U.S. and Germany, which Germany won 1-0, you may have noticed that the U.S. side's secret weapon was absent from the field. Who's that, you ask? No, not star Jozy Altidore — who went down with an injury in the team's very first game of the tournament — but rather Will Ferrell.

The Anchorman star visited U.S. World Cup headquarters in Brazil this week, where he indicated he was ready and willing to pull a Suarez for America in Thursday's game.

Raising the fist of a soccer fan dressed as President Teddy Roosevelt, Ferrell led the crowd in chants of "USA! USA! USA!"

"I'm so honoured to be playing (Thursday)," Ferrell said. "I'm not gonna lie to you, I'm not in soccer shape right now, but I'm gonna try my best ... If the game gets close, I will bite the opponent. I will bite every German player if I have to."

Ferrell also promised to reunite with fans after the game to party. "Look for the guy sitting next to Teddy Roosevelt in a red, white and blue bikini top," he said.



Orlando Bloom

ALL PHOTOS GETTY IMAGES

Orlando's partying may have been why Miranda called it quits

It seems the secret ingredient to Orlando Bloom and Miranda Kerr's divorce was his penchant for drinking. Sources tell Radar Online that Bloom has a tendency to "black out" and "become someone else" when partying, which Kerr couldn't stand. The source points to one particular party last year just before their separation was announced. "Orlando got wasted at one of Ian McKellan's famous dinner parties, which was mostly just a wine party. Miranda hates when Orly gets drunk the way he does because he often blacks out and forgets where he is," the source explains. "Someone usually walks him home just to be safe, but I think the drinking was the flaw Miranda used to file the divorce."

My resolution to be bolder when I barbecue this season is going ... slowly.

While I may have had dreams of planked salmon and racks of baby back ribs dancing on my grill, the lowly hamburger and hot dog just keep calling.

Not that they can't be considered haute cuisine, there are plenty of glossy cookbooks dedicated to both. What I really love is that you don't have to get fancy when looking for a wine match. The thing to remember is that the meat involved isn't the star of the show. It's everything you pile on top that dictates the pairing. Sugary condiments, hot peppers, cheese, sauerkraut — you name it, someone is layering it between their buns. Off-dry red and white wines are the most accommodating because they can roll with the sweet extremes and smother the fire of anything hot.

California's Revolution Red ($9.49 - $12.99) is a bright, berry-forward wine with a touch of residual sweetness. With more body than you might expect at its price-point, it makes a great partner with simple barbecue fare.

PRICES REFLECT THE RANGE ACROSS THE COUNTRY. SOME PRODUCTS MAY NOT BE AVAILABLE IN ALL PROVINCES.

A big bowl of Canada

Serve this salad up at your Canada Day get-together for a truly patriotic dining experience. THERESA ALBERT

Cross-Canada Salad.

Ten provinces, three territories, one dish with ingredients from coast to coast

Starch

Highly nourishing grains like barley and flax grow in Manitoba and Saskatchewan. Flax is a golden or brown seed that is high in fibre and good fat. Soaking or simmering creates a soluble fibre gel that is beneficial. Barley, meanwhile, serves up a base of fibre and nutrients.

P.E.I. grows potatoes and the mini red ones can be tossed into the grain pot so everything simmers together to create a new twist on summer's ubiquitous potato salad.

Salad dressing

If you've never seen a canola field in bloom in a province like Alberta, you missing out on beautiful golden yellow fields that generate an oil seed that is in demand all over the world. The other yellow crop grown in many provinces including Ontario is mustard seed, which is a great binder in vinaigrette.

Apples grow across Canada, including in Newfoundland and New Brunswick, so apple cider vinegar is a must. Quebec maple trees are tapped for their sweet sap that adds a piquant sweetness to a savoury dish.

Greens are grown everywhere so a tiptoe through the farmland will deliver bitter dandelion and chives.

Protein topping

In British Columbia, Northwest Territories and Nunavut salmon is a deep and ancient part of the culture. The other coast of Nova Scotia serves up crab. To make life simple, go for the canned stuff. It's simple to use but equally delicious and nourishing.

According to Agriculture Canada, the Yukon's biggest export is cattle and forage, so Greek yogurt, the popular dairy product, will lend a creaminess and protein to the seafood salad topping.

1. In a large pot, bring water, a pinch of salt, potatoes, barley and flax seed to a boil, cover, and turn down to simmer for 30 minutes. When cooked, stir in 1/4 cup of vinegar, salt and pepper.

2. Whisk 1/4 cup canola oil, 1/4 cup apple cider vinegar, maple syrup and mustard for dressing.

3. Mix drained salmon and crab with Greek yogurt and 1 tbsp mustard plus chives.

4. Layer salad with barley mixture on the bottom, topped with dandelion or other greens then seafood salad. Drizzle with dressing. THERESA ALBERT IS A FOOD COMMUNICATIONS SPECIALIST AND TORONTO PERSONAL NUTRITIONIST. SHE IS @THERESAALBERT ON TWITTER AND FOUND DAILY AT MYFRIENDINFOOD.COM

Ingredients

- 6 cups water
- 1 cup pearl barley
- 1/4 cup flax seeds
- 1 lb mini red potatoes
- 1/4 cup canola oil
- 1/2 cup apple cider vinegar, divided
- 1 tbsp maple syrup
- 2 tbsp mustard, divided
- 1 can boneless, skinless salmon drained
- 1 can crabmeat, drained
- 2 tbsp chopped chives
- 1/4 cup plain Greek yogurt
- 4 cups dandelion greens

Bourbon. Maple. Good.

This recipe serves four. MATTHEW MEAD/ THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

1. Heat grill to medium and prepare for indirect cooking. On a charcoal grill, this entails banking coals to one side and cooking on cooler side. On a gas grill, it means turning off one side (or the centre burner) and cooking over the cooler section.

Ingredients

- 2 lb centre-cut salmon fillet (about 1 inch thick), skin separated, then replaced (ask your butcher to do this)
- Olive oil
- Salt and ground white pepper
- 1/4 cup maple syrup
- Juice and zest of 1/2 small orange
- 2 tbsp bourbon

2. Check for and remove any small bones in salmon. Brush salmon on all sides with olive oil, then season with salt and pepper. Lay fish, skin-side down, directly on cooking grate on the cooler side of the grill. Cook salmon until opaque, but still moist, 25 minutes, depending on thickness of fish.

3. Meanwhile, in bowl whisk maple syrup, orange zest and juice, the bourbon and a pinch of salt. Brush the glaze over the salmon during the final 10 minutes. Do not turn the salmon during cooking.

4. To transfer fish to serving platter, slide a wide spatula between flesh and the skin. Lift the salmon off the grill, leaving the skin behind. Cover the salmon with foil to keep warm.

5. Slide the skin over to the hot side of the grill, then close the lid. Cook for 2 to 3 minutes, or until the skin is crisp and the salmon oils are bubbling. Remove the skin from the grill and serve on the side as you would a chip. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS/ELIZABETH KARMEL, AUTHOR OF SOAKED, SLATHERED AND SEASONED.

Lions look to roar in season opener

The B.C. Lions open up the 2014 season against the Edmonton Eskimos at BC Place Stadium on Saturday (3 p.m. PT, TSN, Team 1040).

Kevin Glenn
TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Kevin Glenn, acquired at the CFL Draft for the fifth overall pick as an insurance policy for Travis Lulay as he recovers from shoulder surgery, will start at quarterback for the Lions.

Canucks in Philly for the draft

The Canucks have the sixth overall pick going into the NHL Draft on Friday. General manager Jim Benning, earlier this week, had not ruled out the possibility of trading up in the selection order, kicking the tires for the No. 1 overall pick held by Florida.

Whitecaps hope to rebound

Their return from the World Cup break was a dud — a 0-0 draw with Montreal on Wednesday. But the Whitecaps have an important Western Conference match-up against the Colorado Rapids on Saturday (6 p.m. PT, TSN, Team 1410). The Rapids, FC Dallas and Whitecaps are all tied with 22 points in the standings. Vancouver has a game in hand on Colorado.

Benning busy at draft

NHL. Will second-line centre Ryan Kesler be traded, or will he remain in Vancouver?

CAM TUCKER

Hiring a new head coach was just the first major test for the Vancouver Canucks and their new hockey operations team. The NHL draft quickly presents another.

The club's previous draft history has been dubious, but this group, that includes new president of hockey operations Trevor Linden and general manager Jim Benning, can't be blamed for that.

In Philadelphia on Friday, the Canucks have the sixth overall pick, a position that could yield a top prospect for the organization, under a completely different regime and philosophy than even three months ago, to build around.

Benning hasn't ruled out the possibility of trading up in the selection order, and he's had talks with Florida Panthers general manager Dale Tallon about the first overall selection.

Speaking to reporters in Philadelphia on Thursday, Benning reiterated the point that such talks will continue right up until the draft.

"Like I've said before, we're inquiring about what it takes to try to move up," he said. "We're happy at six. We think at six we're going to get a really good player we like."

What about Ryan Kesler?

Will he get traded? Or, like it happened at the NHL trade deadline in March, will he remain a member of the Canucks?

Reports from TSN suggest a deal for Kesler could be done by Friday's draft.

If Kesler is indeed traded, it could be the first major player deal of the Benning-Trevor Linden era. Optimum return is necessary.

The qualities he brings as a second-line centre — speed, nastiness, scoring ability, quality minutes including on the power play and penalty kill — are highlighted by the fact he comes with a $5-million annual cap hit.

"We're talking to teams. But at the end of the day, we're going to do what makes sense for us and to try to help Ryan out," said Benning.

Trade talk involving Ryan Kesler should get plenty of play Friday. GETTY IMAGES FILE

Three players to watch at the draft

SAM REINHART, centre, Kootenay Ice (WHL). Reinhart, of West Vancouver, is the No. 3-ranked North American skater by NHL Central Scouting. Could he go first overall? Would the Canucks move up and make him the hometown centre? Lauded not only for his skill with the puck, but his maturity and hockey intelligence.

AARON EKBLAD, defenceman, Barrie Colts (OHL). Ekblad is the No. 2-ranked North American skater by NHL Central Scouting. He's got the size, at 6-3 and 213 pounds. He scored 23 goals this past season in the Ontario Hockey League and could be the prototypical franchise defenceman.

JAKE VIRTANEN, left-winger, Calgary Hitmen (WHL). Virtanen, of Abbotsford, is the No. 6-ranked North American skater by NHL Central Scouting. The Canucks have the sixth overall pick, so naturally, because of where he's from, this has led to speculation the Canucks could select the potential power forward Virtanen.

Suarez banned, U.S. and Algeria advance

As Luis Suarez prepared to leave the World Cup in disgrace, Americans and Algerians were celebrating their places in the knockout rounds on a dramatic final day of the group stage on Thursday.

While some form of suspension for Suarez was guaranteed after the Uruguay striker bit Italy's Giorgio Chiellini on the shoulder, few would have predicted one of the longest bans in the tournament's history — nine international matches and four months from all football.

It was his third ban for biting after previous incidents in England and the Netherlands.

The U.S. lost 1-0 to Germany on Thursday in its last match in Group G, but it still managed to qualify and line up a second-round game against Belgium on Tuesday in Salvador.

Ghana, which had a more realistic chance of beating the U.S. to second place behind the already-qualified German, missed its chance in a 2-1 defeat to Cristiano Ronaldo's Portugal. Ronaldo scored the winner in a pyrrhic victory for what the world player of the year has accurately described as "probably just an average team."

Meanwhile, Algeria advanced to the knockout stage for the first time after Islam Slimani's headed equalizer gave his team a 1-1 draw against Russia.

Also, Belgium — down to 10 men — made it 3-for-3 in the group stage by beating South Korea 1-0.

Horoscopes

♈ Aries
March 21 - April 20
Take care of family matters today. You will not only have the desire to do something about them but partners will for once be co-operative, so make the most of the situation and spread a little happiness.

♉ Taurus
April 21 - May 21
Short trips will be productive today, so don't stay in one place for too long. The more you are on the move the more likely it is you will meet people who can be of some use to you.

♊ Gemini
May 22 - June 21
What happens today will remind you that money is not the most important thing in the world. Yes, you need to make a living but that does not mean you should put material things ahead of everything else.

♋ Cancer
June 22 - July 23
A new moon in your birth sign today gives you an advantage over most people and you would be a fool not to take advantage of it. You may not have this much energy for quite a while, so be amazing.

♌ Leo
July 24 - Aug. 23
You have nothing to fear and everything to look forward to and the more you repeat that phrase to yourself today the more likely it is you will have a great time.

♍ Virgo
Aug. 24 - Sept. 23
Today's new moon suggests you can take a leadership role in group activities. Others will follow you willingly if you are willing to take more responsibility. Lead from the front.

♎ Libra
Sept. 24 - Oct. 23
You can expect something big to happen on the work front over the next few days. But why wait for things to happen to you? Show those in power you're ready to be promoted.

♏ Scorpio
Oct. 24 - Nov. 22
Because today's new moon falls in one of the more expansive areas of your chart your thoughts will be positive. What you think about now will be your reality later on.

♐ Sagittarius
Nov. 23 - Dec. 21
Cosmic activity in one of the more sensitive areas of your chart may give you a negative view of life but it does not have to be that way. What happens over the next 24 hours will confirm that you are loved.

♑ Capricorn
Dec. 22 - Jan. 20
A new moon in your opposite sign of Cancer means that partners and loved ones will be full of themselves over the next 24 hours. Instead of getting angry about it why don't you join in the fun?

♒ Aquarius
Jan. 21 - Feb. 19
Others insist that you work harder but don't do it. You may have time and energy at your disposal but you should be using it to further your own aims, not the aims of others.

♓ Pisces
Feb. 20 - March 20
Today's new moon in the most dynamic area of your chart endows you with confidence and energy. Whatever you put your mind to will be a success. But don't spread yourself too thin. SALLY BROMPTON
